Tennessee Valley Fair History

The Tennessee Valley Fair has been a vital part of the life in our region since 1916; however we can trace its origins back to the earliest years of the last century. It began as an idea in the minds of a group of progressive and in some way idealistic Knoxvilleians. These men dreamed of making their city the shining centerpiece of a prosperous and modernized Appalachian by hosting a great exposition.

Opening day for the exposition was September 12, 1910 and due to it's success it continued in 1911 and 1913. After much negotiations and persuasions organizers promoted an annual fair which was to be named the East Tennessee Division Fair and was first held in 1916 and promoted not only improved methods of agriculture and raising livestock but also displays of improvement for labor, industry, education arts and sciences.

The first Fair set the pattern for all those which followed over the next nine decades. It struck a healthy balance between entertainment and education, between lighthearted fun and serious business. A great deal remains unchanged; however the Midway today offers much of the same thrills and oddities as it did ninety years earlier, and the Fair's nightly fireworks seem never to lose their appeal to Fairgoers of all ages.
